

New application for a patent to NIPO (for non-citizens)

If you do not have a Norwegian ID number, use this form. Otherwise, use our other form:

New application for a patent

Important information about patents

You can patent-protect an invention. This may be a product, an apparatus, a procedure or an application. A patent gives you sole right to utilise the invention commercially for a limited time. During this period you can prevent others from producing, importing and selling the invention.

To enable you to obtain a patent, the invention must represent a technical solution to a problem. The solution must have a technical character, have a technical effect and be reproducible. You must explain how the invention can be embodied in practice. The invention must be new and differ substantially from previous known technology.

Note that you cannot change information in the application so that the rights are expanded after you have filed the application. Please contact our information centre if you have any questions about completing the form.

Your application will become public

When your application is made publically available, information we receive from you will be available via the electronic search function on our website. Basically we will protect sensitive and confidential information.

You can ask us to exempt trade secrets from public disclosure. Highlight clearly what information in the application or attachments you wish to be exempt. We will then assess whether the information can be made exempt from public disclosure. Use the 'Other information' field on the 'Information about goods and services' page to draw our attention to this.

Read more about how The Norwegian Industrial Property Office processes personal data on our website.

A patent application should contain a description of the invention, including drawings where relevant. The application should also contain patent claims, and in addition a brief abstract of the description and the patent claims. If you have questions about the contents of these documents, we encourage you to contact us before you submit your application.

You cannot file for a patent for several different inventions in the same application. You must file one application for each invention.

Title of the invention

You must enter a brief and objective title (designation) for the invention.

Attachments

It is important that the application contains everything concerned with your invention. You cannot add information or submit documents afterwards that are not already apparent from the application, because it expands the invention. Click on 'List – forms and attachments' at top left to add files.

Description

The description should explain the invention and should be so clear that a specialist could practise the invention on the basis of it.

Drawings

If the application contains drawings, attach these in black-and-white as .pdf or .tif.

Abstract

A brief summing-up of the description and the patent claims.

Patent claims

Are the specific indication of what you are applying for protection of.

Enter the number of claims in the application

You will be charged an additional fee for the number of claims in excess of 10.

Information on biological material

Have you deposited biological material?

No

Case processing language

Select this checkbox if you wish English to be used as the case processing language. We will then communicate with you in English.

Other information

If you have any comments on this application, enter them here.

Number of attached files

- 2 This field shows how many attachments you have added to the application. The field is updated when you attach files, and you cannot enter a number here. Attach files by going to the 'List – forms and attachments' tab at the top left-hand side of the page.
